Mayor wants shirts stripped

Menino wants T-shirts out of public view ◗ Nike says slogans don't promote drug use ◗ Boston visitors think city leader is overreacting

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO

▶ Boston Mayor Thomas Menino is in a uproar about the shirts displayed in the window of the Niketown on Newbury Street.

Near Newbury Street, sex toys and kinky cakes can be seen in store windows, but Mayor Thomas Menino is lashing out at Niketown's T-shirt displays that allegedly promote drug use.

Slogans like "Get High" and "Dope" with pictures of pill bottles visible from the busy shopping area should be taken down, according to a letter Menino sent to the store yesterday.

While Menino urged their removal, out-of-towners didn't see what the fuss was about.

"We wouldn't take it seriously at all," said Michelle Boyle, 23, visiting from Ireland. "Not all, but I guess some Americans can be uptight."

A French couple, who didn't give their names, said in Europe it wouldn't be an issue and no one would react to it.

Beantown bans

- In 1968, a superior court judge banned a documentary about a mental institute from being shown.
- Four Loko malt beverages were taken off shelves in 2010.
- In 2007, eyebrow tinting dyes were banned because of poisonous hazards.
- "Stop Snitchin'" shirts were pulled from racks in 2005.
- An anti-Scott Brown ad was stopped from running on MBTA buses and trains last week.

A woman visiting from Los Angeles said it wouldn't matter in West Hollywood.

In Beantown, however, where being liberal is lauded, Bostonians reacted to the shirt sales.

"It shouldn't be right in the window for people to see," said 20-year-old Caitlin Caruso. "It's kind of bad."

"These T-shirts are part of an action sports campaign, featuring ... athletes using commonly used and accepted expressions. Nike does not condone the use of banned or illegal substances."
DEREK KENT, NIKE SPOKESMAN

Keith Hornsby, a Boston resident, said they should be taken down from public view for the kids' sake, but OK to sell inside.

A Niketown employee wouldn't comment about how fast the shirts were selling but several racks were full of the garments with slogans like "Get Wet," a phrase associated with smoking the drug PCP.

"I think it's a joke," said Dave Tesik, 31. "The mayor has better things to do than spend his time battling this."

It's not the first time Menino jumped on the backs of clothing distributors, either.

In 2005, stores removed "Stop Snitchin'" T-shirts at Menino's request because he said they encouraged people to not cooperate with police at a time when city homicides had peaked.

Nike reps wouldn't say if they would do the same.

Young woman hit by car; cops seek clues

Victim remains in critical condition • Surveillance images from last week's incident released • Police search for gray or silver Chevy Impala with spoiler

Police are asking for the public's help in locating at car that hit a 23-year-old woman last week, leaving her critically injured.

The woman, who is from Cambridge, was hit just after 3 a.m. Saturday near the intersection of Massachusetts Avenue and Shirley Street in Roxbury. It was unclear if she was in a crosswalk at the time, police said.

The woman was trying to cross the street to use a bathroom and was with three friends at the time, police said.

She was rushed to Boston Medical Center and is currently there in critical condition, police said.

Detectives today released video images of the suspected vehicle.

Witnesses said the car was a gray or silver Chevy Impala with a spoiler on the rear. The car likely sustained front-end damage to the passenger side and could be in a repair shop.

Anyone with information can call 617-343-6430.

Women's Wal-Mart fight continues here

After Supreme Court decision against them, activists still look to retail giant to change ◗ Employees had accused company of sex discrimination

Supreme verdict

- The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday threw out a class-action lawsuit against the world's largest retailer.
- The suit, covering 1 million female employees nationwide, sought billions of dollars because it alleged the company paid women less than men and gave them fewer promotions.
- The justices ruled that the class-action suit could not be brought because it was too large, and the women at various stores with various supervisors did not have enough in common.

A day after their cause was dealt a major blow by a Supreme Court decision against them, women's rights activists yesterday continued their fight and protested outside a local Wal-Mart official's Cambridge office.

"Wal-Mart shouldn't be gloating about taking away the rights of women," said Jennifer Doe, the women's rights organizer for Jobs with Justice. "If a company like Wal-Mart doesn't change, then they will likely lose the support of women shoppers."

That's the message Doe and the group of about a dozen mostly female protesters wanted to deliver to Dr. James Cash. Cash, a retired emeritus professor at Harvard Business School, is a member of the store's board of directors.

"We've got ... to put pressure on the company to reform their policies even though the courts are not making them."

BETHANY WITHERS OF THE MASSACHUSETTS CHAPTER OF THE NATIONAL ORGANIZATION FOR WOMEN

Doe asked to speak with Cash at his office, but a secretary and executive said he wasn't available and urged the group to set up a meeting.

Meanwhile, the other protesters stood outside the Harvard Square office holding signs that read, "Stop corporate greed" and "Living better means equality at Wal-Mart."

A Wal-Mart executive said in a statement that the court's decision "pulls the rug out" from under the accusations.

Obama finalizes plan for Afghan cuts

President Barack Obama made his final decision yesterday on the scale and pace of a U.S. troop drawdown in Afghanistan and will announce his plan in a primetime speech to Americans today.

Obama is expected to present a blueprint for bringing home thousands of troops in the initial phase starting in July and also unveil a broader withdrawal strategy for the remainder of the 30,000 extra "surge" troops he ordered deployed in late 2009, a U.S. official said.

The president's address from the White House, scheduled for 8 p.m. EDT, comes amid growing pressure from Congress and the U.S. public for an end to the costly, 10-year-old war.

Obama has sought to balance arguments from military leaders pressing for a slow drawdown and White House advisers advocating a more rapid pullout as he faces a 2012 reelection campaign.

Obama's decision comes at a critical juncture as lawmakers, looking to slash federal spending, are anxious to curtail the costly U.S. military intervention. REUTERS

Bachmann, a conservative Tea Party favorite in the House of Representatives, saw one of her two political committees — MichelePAC — bring in about $214,000 in May, compared with $173,000 for April, according to filings with the Federal Election Commission posted on Monday. REUTERS

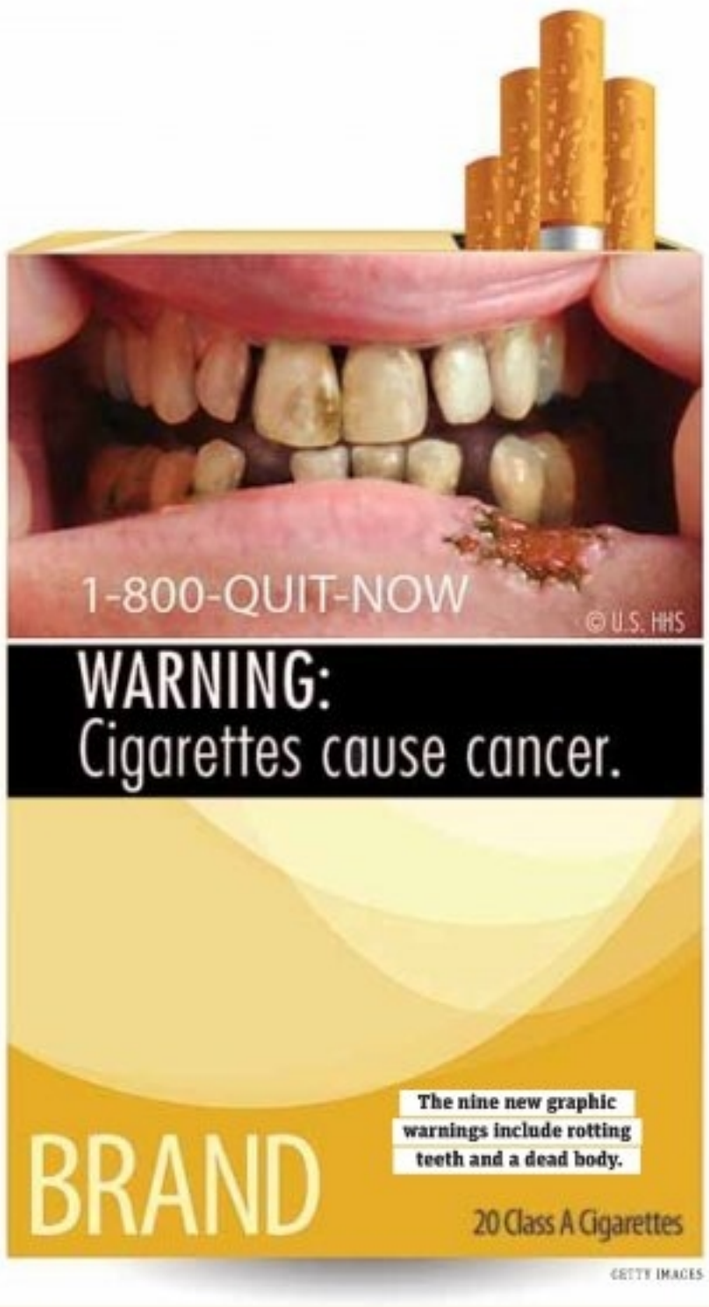
Graphic labels for tobacco released

Dead body, diseased lungs among stark images ◗ Required on cigarette packs and ads by Sept. 2012 ◗ Sebelius aims to keep kids from smoking



GETTY IMAGES

Dead bodies, diseased lungs and rotting teeth were among the among the graphic images for revamped tobacco labels — unveiled yesterday by health officials who hope the warnings will help smokers quit.

The new labels must be on cigarette packages and tobacco advertisements no later than September 2012, as part of a law that put the multibillion-dollar tobacco industry under the control of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

They represent the first change in U.S. cigarette warnings in 25 years.

"With these warnings, every person who picks up a pack of cigarettes is going to know exactly what risks they are taking," Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius told reporters at the White House.

The new labels may disturb some, including one with a photograph of a man smoking a cigarette through a hole in his throat, and one showing a mouth with discolored teeth and an ulcerated lip.

Other images stress the dangers of secondhand smoke to children and show tobacco's causal link to lung disease, cancer, strokes, heart disease and death.

Sebelius said the goal was to stop children and teenagers from starting to smoke and to give nicotine-addicted adults an added incentive to quit, helping push down U.S. smoking levels that have been stubbornly stagnant in recent years.

"We want kids to understand that smoking is gross not cool and there is really nothing pretty about having mouth cancer or making your baby sick if you smoke," she said. REUTERS

221K

More than 221,000 Americans will be diagnosed with lung cancer in 2011, accounting for about 14 percent of all U.S. cancer cases, according to the American Cancer Society. Nearly 157,000 men and women are expected to die from lung cancer this year in the United States.

That'll get their attention

The 2009 Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act called for cigarette packages to include warning statements in large type covering half of the front and back of each package and graphic images showing the health dangers of smoking.

The anti-smoking group Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids said the images are a dramatic change from today's printed warnings that simply list potential health problems from smoking. REUTERS

Mixed reviews for big fashion matchup

Could partnership hurt Versace? Some say yes Keep prices higher than normal H&M gear, one marketing strategist warns Others say collaboration is a win-win

The scoop

H&M stores are going to be looking very flashy come midautumn. The affordable chain just signed on Donatella Versace to create the next installment of its designer collection. The line, which hits stores on Nov. 17, will include women's and men's clothing in addition to accessories for the home. And like many of the designer collaborations before it, this one will feature a lot of the brand's pricey trademarks for less.

COURTESY OF H & M

Two looks from the Versace for H&M line.

Laga Gaga in Versace

Retail and branding experts have mixed thoughts on the partnership between luxe Versace and budget-friendly H&M.

"Versace has become so inaccessible in the past few years, especially while the economy tanked, even more so than other high-end brands," said Rachel Weingarten, a marketing strategist who teaches personal branding at New York University. "It's become a symbol of excess and perhaps unfairly, a symbol of the '80s. So I think the timing is excellent."

"They need to still be in the consumer's mind and maybe this will bridge that connection — it's accessible snob appeal," she continued.

She cautioned that Versace should keep its items a bit pricier than H&M usually charges.

"If it's done incorrectly, it can look like Versace is pandering to the mass market in order to remain relevant."
LOUIS MARINO, MARKETING EXPERT

"That will help make H&M become a destination," said Weingarten. "And limiting the number of pieces they actually sell would be a great move, too."

Jacqui Stafford, a fashion contributor on the "Today" show said the collaboration is a good way for young shoppers to become more familiar with the Versace name.

"It's a win-win," she said. "It's aspirational — shoppers will say, 'One day I'm going to get myself a real Versace jacket," now that they've had a taste of the brand."

But both companies need to tread carefully, warned Louis Marino, who previously worked as P. Diddy's creative director.

"If it's done incorrectly, it can look like Versace is pandering to the mass market in order to remain relevant," he said. "Versace has more to lose. H&M knows what it is."

"In the branding world it's always smarter to marry up rather than marry down," said branding expert Rob Frankel.

- "The collection will be quintessential Versace, perfect for H&M and Versace fans everywhere," Donatella said in a statement.
- The announcement is the latest upswing for the Italian house, which has been in the press lately for its celebrity-heavy men's runway show and Lady Gaga moment — the diva recently said she will wear only the brand for the next few months. 2011 is turning out to be a comeback for Versace after several years that were dominated by debt and restructuring. This Saturday marks the two-year anniversary of the death of Michael Jackson. To commemorate (or take advantage of, depending on your view) this sad date, his sister, La Toya Jackson, released a new memoir, "Starting Over," in which she claims to unveil the behind-the-scenes dealings she believes led to Michael's death. She also discloses more about the abuse she suffered while growing up in the famous Jackson family.

"I have people come up to me, telling me their stories, and I would tell them that I understand. They would then cry and I would hug them and hold them. That was when I realized that there are more people out there being abused than we think, and I need to speak up for them, putting their stories out there and letting people know about the abuse," she told Metro at her book party on Monday night in New York City. "And that was exactly what I did."

La Toya Jackson on Monday

Despite the book's heavy themes, Jackson's party was a lively affair, with guests sipping champagne and nibbling on hors d'oeuvres. Jackson, who spent most of the time in a corner with various friends, got up occasionally to take photos with fans, including Nikki M. James, star of "The Book Of Mormon," who stopped by for a pic.

As for Saturday, she wouldn't disclose how she is going to mark her brother's passing. "I do," she answered when asked if she had any idea of what she is planning, "but it will be very private."

The couple who drinks coffee together ...

Leonardo DiCaprio and Blake Lively are still enjoying each other's company, despite rumors the new couple had already split up. DiCaprio and Lively hit a private resort in the coastal town of Carmel, Calif., though they did venture out into town for some shopping and coffee. According to the source, DiCaprio waited outside with his baseball cap pulled down low while she ordered.

Lohan is actually working!

House arrest has been very good for Lindsay Lohan, as the troubled actress has not only stayed out of trouble but has also gotten some work. Lohan booked and filmed a TV commercial for Internet auction site Beezid.com, filming the spot at the Venice, Calif., house she's not allowed to leave, according to TMZ. The company reportedly offered Lohan $25,000 initially, which she turned down. The final amount Lohan agreed to is not known, but sources say she was also given $10,000 in credit to use on the site.

Sara MacDonald and Noel Gallagher

Well, we know who wasn't the best man

Former Oasis frontman Noel Gallagher married longtime girlfriend Sara MacDonald over the weekend in England, according to E! Online, with Russell Brand serving as best man. The wedding wasn't a family affair, though — Noel's brother and former bandmate, Liam Gallagher, skipped the event, as the pair reportedly haven't spoken since their 2009 split. "He goes on about how he wasn't invited to my wedding," Noel told the Chicago Sun-Times recently. "Get over it, mate. I've not been invited to his wedding."

Their band could be his life

▶ Henry Rollins, left, interviews Dinosaur Jr. tonight before the band play their 1988 album, "Bug" in its entirety. The show starts at 7 at the Paradise (967 Comm. Ave., Boston).

Henry Rollins on eight nights of talking to Dinosaur Jr. and getting to see a band he loves as a bonus ◗ 'I want to give the audience some context'

Often called a Renaissance Man, Henry Rollins prefers to classify himself more modestly as a "jackass-of-all-trades." First gaining notoriety as the fourth and most famous singer in the hard core band, Black Flag, Rollins is now a performer of spoken word, an author with his own publishing company, an actor, commentator and a relentless mouthpiece for hardnosed opinions. He writes a music column for the LA Weekly and deejays a weekly radio show at KCRW in Santa Monica. This fall he'll release a documentary-styled travel photo book, "Occupants," and host National Geographic's new series, "Animal Underworld." Despite all of that, he takes on one of his strangest roles tonight — interviewing Dinosaur Jr. onstage before their set. The following is a criminally short excerpt of an extremely inspired interview with the always-motivated Rollins. Visit us online for more.

You're still very involved in the music scene. Do you miss playing in bands?

I miss music, but I know that I wouldn't be able to do anything with it that would be any good. I don't want to do old material and I don't think anything I write that would be new would be worth it. ... In my LA Weekly article coming out this week, I talk about Dinosaur Jr. and how they're still making really good music and really good songs. But then I look at Mick Jagger singing that he, "can't get no satisfaction" in front of 50,000 people, I have to come to the conclusion that he's either lying, or not that bright.

How serious are you going to be with the interviews?

Damned serious. I want to give the audience some context so 20 minutes later, when they hear the album live, they might consider the songs differently. This isn't a normal set by Dinosaur. They're doing a historic record and I think the questions should stick to the spirit of what they're doing onstage that night.

Q&A

EBET ROBERTS/REDFERNS/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Dinosaur Jr.

So where did this idea to interview Dinosaur Jr. onstage before the show come from?

▶ You'd have to ask the band. They contacted me. Being such a huge Dinosaur Jr. fan, the upside for me is that I get to see the band play eight times in eight nights... and I'm going to watch all eight shows. I'm just a fan.

Flowers, the perfect mix

Approach your wedding bouquets the way you would your wardrobe, with a mix of budget and pricey blooms Three tips to save on flowers

Bouquets vs. table arrangements

"There are three elements of a wedding: Personal flowers, ceremony flowers and reception flowers," explains New York based flower designer Kathleen Hyppolite of Kat Flower. "I ask all my clients where they really want to focus their money, and then cut back on the other areas. Do they want a fabulous bouquet? Or do they want beautiful flowers at the reception? If you choose reception, maybe your nine bridesmaids don't carry big bouquets. You do something smaller for them." Hyppolite also suggests getting creative. "Instead of bouquets, maybe you can do flowers in the hair or carry a single bloom."

Mix high and low

"If you have an expensive flower that you love, like the peony, maybe you use it more sparingly," suggests Hyppolite. "Peonies are a beautiful full bloom, so there is bang for your buck with that. You don't need a whole lot of them. Your florist can pair the peonies with a rose that's just as full. It's like pairing a Club Monaco skirt with a beautiful Loro Piana cashmere sweater. Or J.Crew flats and a Gucci bag. That peony or that expensive flower will automatically elevate the other flowers in the arrangement."

TINA CHADHA

Shop in season

"The best ways to keep your wedding flower cost down is to use what's local, available and in season," says Hyppolite.

Rather than going all out on a bouquet made solely of peonies, mix in less expensive flowers that are just as beautiful.

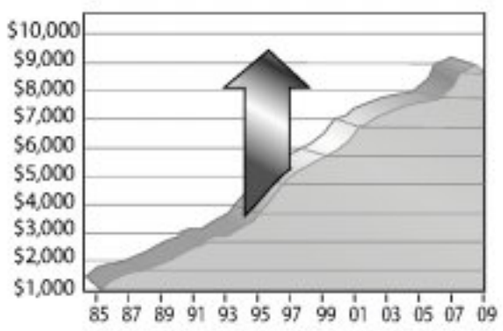
Credit Card Debt?

Solutions that can help you get out of debt.

Tom Hill
CGA STAFF WRITER

Every three minutes another person falls behind on credit card debt. It's no wonder, since every major credit card company has nearly doubled the minimum monthly payment on consumers' bills. Federal Regulators forced the change because of their concern about the growing mountain of consumer debt, which stands at $2.17 trillion. Many consumers can only pay the minimum payment, which can take up to 30 years to pay off. Now, relief is in sight for millions of Americans.

U.S. CREDIT CARD DEBT PER HOUSEHOLD ($)



(Data Source: U.S. Federal Reserve)

CreditGUARD of America, a non-profit licensed debt management service provider, is making a new program available to lower debt payments and become free of all credit card debt in only three to five years. Consumers need only $2,000 or more in total credit card debt and falling behind on any account, to cut their payment by 35% to 50%, and reduce or eliminate interest charges altogether.

Over 200,000 families, located throughout the U.S. have regained financial independence with CreditGUARD's licensed, bonded and insured service. CreditGUARD of America has received high marks in consumer surveys showing high consumer satisfaction and confidence. The CreditGUARD debt management program can lower your monthly payments by hundreds and save you thousands!

One such case is Sandra L. who proclaimed "CreditGUARD cut my monthly payment by $656 and saved me over $29,206.53 in interest. They saved my way of life and gave me back my piece of mind! Now I can see myself on my way to becoming debt free." or Jeffery C. who said "CreditGUARD of America helped me consolidate 3 of my credit cards into one affordable payment. They are now saving me nearly $200 a month. Now I will be debt free in 2 years or less"

Take control and take an HIV test

Do your part

What happens at an HIV test?

Getting tested is simple. Like many centers around the country, ASC uses OraQuick Advance Rapid HIV-1/2 Antibody test, which is a simple mouth swab to see if HIV antibodies are present — that means no needles and no blood work (although blood tests and urine tests are still available for those who prefer them). With rapid testing, results are available in about 20 minutes. At many testing sites, testing is free, completely confidential and includes a pre- and post-test counseling session. To find a testing center near you, visit www.hivtest.org.

National HIV Testing Day is June 27 'Early testing means people with HIV can live healthy lives,' expert says What to expect when going in

COMSTOCK

Getting an HIV test isn't even this hard anymore.

AIDS was once the small word that struck big fear, but it's no longer the scaremongering disease it was when it first went public in the 1980s, when a pandemic of biblical proportions was feared.

"The perception of it as a chronic disease has changed," says Sharen Duke, CEO of AIDS Service Center NYC. "There have been medical advances in treating it, but the reality is that there still is no cure. Prevention is our best weapon for individual and community health."

"Prevention is our best weapon for individual and community health."
SHAREN DUKE

Prevention includes testing people for HIV, the virus that results in AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome), which, along with safe sex education, is still the only way to stem the disease. National HIV Testing Day, June 27, aims to spread the message that HIV/AIDS is alive and still making people unwell. Early testing is part of secondary prevention.

"It's important to let people know that early testing means people with HIV can live healthy lives," Duke says. "It also helps prevent spreading the disease through our communities. We need to fight against complacency."

The lowdown on the hook-up

Can there really be such a thing as 'friends with benefits?' Not so much, says our resident therapist

Unless you truly want a relationship or can tolerate the drama, you should stop seeing her. A friend-with-benefits situation rarely works out, as inevitably one person develops emotions for the other. It might not be right away, but emotions will arise. So, if all you want is to satisfy your needs, then hire someone for sex or begin what I imagine will be a difficult search for a woman who shares the same needs as you and can compartmentalize her emotions.

While there's something exciting about the push-pull of the on-again, off-again relationship, for the woman there's also something completely demoralizing about it. Most women, deep down, want a guy who says, "You are the one I want, and I'm willing to do anything to make that happen." So while your woman might temporarily get off on the hot makeup sex, eventually she'll stop respecting you and she'll either demand a full commitment or leave you once and for all.

Men and women handle and react to sex differently. She is going to react emotionally to it whether she wants to or not. The release of pheromones and the hormone oxytocin play a role in the bonding experience that is undeniably strong. That said though, I don't think you'd be hooking up with the same woman over and over again unless you felt something for her — no matter how much you say it's "just sex." So, some introspection on your part might serve you well.

The question

I am a very busy man with a successful career and am on the brink of rising to the next level, which requires a lot of time. I don't wish to be in a serious relationship; however, I have needs, and I occasionally get together with a woman who I dated for a few months. I've been very open and honest with her that it's just sex and she acts like she's fine with that. The problem is, though, she starts making emotional demands. She ends up leaving me, only to contact me again down the road. What should I do?

RE: Aguilera's chunky salary

D. SENSALE, VIA E-MAIL

Even if Gaga wrote full-time

Cheerleading for the enactment of same sex marriage belongs on the opinion pages, not in your news stories. Being a short-form newspaper, you should not truncate your editorial standards. It's one thing to have Lady Gaga as a guest editor, it's quite another to pursue her one-issue advocacy day after day. Metro has yet to balance its pro-same-sex marriage bias with a reasonable depiction of the pro-traditional marriage position, in either artwork or reporting.

MICHAEL BENJAMIN, VIA E-MAIL

On the road to Gomorrah?

Homosexuals cannot procreate without the intercession of heterosexual benefits. Therefore they will never be biologically equal. You may legislate that the sky is pink, but it is in fact blue. New York City's Bloomberg will leave the legacy of a vote taken in the final days of Gomorrah and the city will be left looking like the freak show that is San Francisco.

DAVID DIBELLO, VIA E-MAIL

When I heard the news about Ryan Dunn's passing, I felt so sad that young lives like his had to end so quickly and violently. I feel for him and for the family and friends he left behind.

Something like tolerance

Let the gays have a method by which their relationships are recognized by the legal system. Just keep the relationship between a man and woman as the mainstream relationship. I know no culture that views same-sex relationships as the dominate or preferred institution.

Horoscope

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22.
There could be justification for your optimism. Conditions look favorable for you, especially concerning something that is dear to your heart.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22.
You've been looking to do something nice for someone who recently treated you with special consideration, and you might get that chance. Don't let this opportunity pass.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22.
There should be no hesitation to partner up with someone whose ideals and standards closely parallel yours. Team up with him or her.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23.
If you sense that you're in a good achievement cycle right now, don't put any limitations on your imagination, especially where your goals and objectives are concerned.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22.
Although you might do very well for yourself in ventures or developments that contain elements of chance, don't get reckless and carry things too far.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21.
You're likely to do much better in a joint effort than you would going it alone. Don't ignore the added strength in numbers.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19.
You should study and profit from the wisdom and experiences of others whenever you can. It pays to be both a good listener and a keen observer when the chance avails itself.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19.
Regardless of what you think, your past efforts will not go unnoticed, unappreciated or unrewarded. Keep the faith; what is due is on its way.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20.
That new admirer of yours out there may be someone you've never had the opportunity to get to know, but all this could change. Be receptive to an extended overture of friendship.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19.
Regardless of how you get there or what you have to go through in order to achieve what you want, remember it's the bottom line that counts. Keep your goals in sight.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20.
You're likely to discover that you could be the recipient of something good. Keep doing what is expected of you, and it'll come about.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20.
Follow through on any intuitive, persistent perception you get concerning a matter of a financial nature. It could put you on a winning track that you wouldn't otherwise take.

Dumping Kessel still paying off for Bruins

Boston makes the third of the picks it got for the forward this week ◗ Trade already resulted in B's getting Seguin, Knight ◗ They're at No. 9 Friday ◗ Toronto gave up a ton

The Bruins have more to smile about this week than the afterglow of their first Stanley Cup in 39 years.

The future looks bright, and not just because of the myriad youngsters already on the roster.

When the 2011 NHL entry draft rolls around Friday in St. Paul, Minn., Boston has another premium pick: No. 9 overall.

That's on the heels of last year's No. 2 selection, which netted them rookie standout Tyler Seguin.

For all that, they can thank Phil Kessel.

Friday's pick will finally be the last of the bounty the Toronto Maple Leafs sent south for the rights to Kessel in September 2009. In all, he brought the B's three draft picks — first-rounders in 2010 and '11 and a '10 second-rounder.

Still young, Kessel has been solid for Toronto, with two 30-goal seasons. And he gave the Bruins three quality years after they picked him fifth in the 2006 draft.

From the looks of it, though, Kessel's been worth far more to Boston since the trade than before it.

Seguin, the first part of the trade windfall, had an almost identical rookie season to Kessel. The center out of Ontario registered 11 goals and 11 assists in 74 regular-season games — not to mention a memorable four-point performance in Game 2 of the Eastern Conference finals.

Kessel had 11 goals and 18 assists in 70 games as a rookie in 2006-07.

The B's used Toronto's 2010 second-round pick to take Jared Knight. The winger scored 70 points for the OHL's London Knights this year before tallying a pair of assists for the Providence Bruins.

Boston is expected to nab a defenseman at No. 9 on Friday. METRO

1 Ryan Murphy (D, OHL) will only fall because the teams at the very top of the draft boards need offense fast.

2 Nathan Beaulieu (D, QMJHL) is bigger than Murphy. He's more of a true D-man, instead of an attacker.

3 Dougie Hamilton (D, OHL) is regarded as a bit of a wild card, due to his relatively late switch to the position.

Jeter back on the field

Derek Jeter resumed on-field workouts yesterday in Tampa, Fla., according to online reports. The Yankees shortstop, who's six hits shy of 3,000 for his career, is on the 15-day DL with a Grade 1 right calf strain. He should return to baseball activities soon. METRO

In the light of day, Red Sox look good

◗ Boston has been almost unbeatable in afternoon starts ◗ Only Yankees have been better under the sun

Whether it's the sunshine or just the promise of a night off, the 2011 Red Sox sure love day games.

Boston, which hosts the Padres at 1:35 p.m. today, is 17-6 playing during the day this year — a .739 win percentage. That's a far cry better than their record under the lights: 27-22 (.551) going into last night.

Only the Yankees (19-4) have been better than Boston in day games this season. But New York has been far worse than the Sox are at night (23-25).

Boston is hitting .310 with a .375 OBP and a .512 slugging percentage during the day this year. At night, those numbers slip to .260, .340 and .420.

The Sox's day ERA is 3.65. It balloons to 4.11 under the lights.

▶ John Isner barely broke a sweat this year.

Short rematch at Wimby

Isner needs just 2:03 to dispatch Mahut this year ◐ That's about nine hours less than their match in 2010 ◐ No living up to that epic contest

After John Isner finished off Nicolas Mahut at Wimbledon yesterday, he lifted his head as he trudged through the autograph-seekers.

"Where were you?" Isner asked Mohamed Lahyani, the chair umpire at last year's match between the two.

Lahyani's absence was far from the only difference between Isner-Mahut in 2010 and 2011.

Last year, the pair played the longest tennis match ever, an 11-hour epic that took place over three days.

This time around, Isner won, 7-6, 6-2, 7-6, in a low-key, early round contest.

The first game of the match lasted less than a minute. Although there were two tiebreaks, the clash never threatened to live up to the patience-trying 6-4, 3-6, 6-7 (7-9), 7-6 (7-3), 70-68 affair of a year ago. METRO/REUTERS

Living in the heart of history

From the original Tea Party to the invention of the Dewey Decimal System, Atlantic Wharf lofts offer historical residences with all modern conveniences

It isn't the first time that the buildings on Russia Wharf have seen massive reconstruction. In 1872, the Great Boston Fire raged through the area, destroying the original structures. By 1876, they were rebuilt, and around 1897, the extant Russia Wharf buildings were added. A new chapter in the Russia Building's history is Atlantic Wharf, a mixed-use development that ultimately adds offices, restaurants (including Smith & Wollensky, Sorelle Bakery & Cafe and Jody Adams' new Trade at Atlantic Wharf) and 86 luxury apartments, the Lofts at Atlantic Wharf. These line up as the latest in a long line of tenants.

"One of the companies that had offices here was The Library Bureau, which invented the Dewey Decimal System," says David Stewart, senior project manager for developers Boston Properties. The project has taught the Ontario native a lot about Boston history. Perhaps the most notable event at the site was the Boston Tea Party in 1773.

Designed in Classical Revival style by Peabody and Stearns, the building is on the National Register of Historic Buildings, which meant careful rehabilitated of the facade, while the interior, Stewart says, was "gutted."

"It's been a phenomenal experience," he says. "It's given me a great appreciation for the historic context of buildings in Boston."

Practice safe salvaging

Is that abandoned chair you spotted on the curb safe to take home? Design duo Wary Meyers share secrets for street shopping

For those short on cash, grabbing a curbside cast-off is a viable solution to redecorating. However, thanks in large part to the bed bug epidemic, this form of recycling can lead to expensive risks. Husband and wife design team Linda Wary and John Meyers (www.warymeyers.com) are experts in all things vintage. Their book, "Tossed & Found: Unconventional Design from Cast-Offs" is all about repurposing found objects. They give us tips.

JACQUELINE COLETTE PROSPER

It's a treasure hunt

When it comes to salvaging, "Sometimes you can find one-of-a-kind items that you're never going to find anywhere else, like a 5-panel wood door or [an art deco] piece of brass," says Meyers.

Sniff test

Before it's dealt with at home, smell it! "Cigarette and [urine] odors never come out," Meyers warns. A musty smell on an end table might clear out if it's left out in the sunlight for a day or two. "But it depends on the severity of the smell," Wary adds. "I once left an old jacket out for an entire summer!"

Determine if it's cost-effective to pick it up

"Can you realistically clean it up if it's a little dirty? Or if it's a lamp, are you going to be able to rewire it if it doesn't work?" Meyers says.

"If it seems impossible to fix, re-donate to the curb."

Safe bets

Glass vases or plastic storage boxes are usually reliably clean finds. "If it looks like it's in good shape, with no strange smells, don't worry about cleaning it before bringing it home," Wary says.

Soap and water

If you spot a dusty dresser or lamp, gently wipe off grime with a soapy sponge. "A harsh chemical could damage old finishes, so best to start with a mild cleanser," she says.

Walk away from upholstery

Bed bugs hide and lay eggs in almost any material, especially soft textiles. Never bring bed frames, mattresses, box springs or upholstered furniture into your home, warns the duo.

Also: "Fabric on an upholstered chair can age and develop mold," says Wary, "and a rusty spring or staple inside a chair can break or pop out — and you don't want to sit on that." (A deep puncture wound, such as from a spring or staple, is most susceptible to tetanus infection — see your doctor if you get pricked!)

REAL ESTATE ON THE GO!

NEW HUB OF YOUNG PROFESSIONALS

By Attorney George Warshaw

Mention "young professionals" to a real estate agent and it brings images of areas in or near a city, revitalized or re-energized by a surge of younger, city dwellers buying condos, brownstones and single-family homes.

I asked Rodrigo Serrano ((781) 929-7379, rodrigo@rigorealty.com) a realtor and buyer's broker with RE-MAX Leading Edge, where are young professionals buying in today's market?

"Real estate in East Arlington and Melrose were discovered a few years ago. It's the first place where my clients want to look. It's a combination of price, lifestyle and proximity to Cambridge and Boston.

"East Arlington has a city feel. Buy a condo, walk to stores and restaurants. Melrose is more the affordable, single-family suburban hotspot. While condo and homes price were declining elsewhere, Melrose and East Arlington resisted. They held their value.

"Condos, for example, in East Arlington, sold at an average of $332,532 in 2009. They held their value last year, and increased slightly to $336,916."

"Single-family homes in Melrose increased at a greater rate. In 2009, homes sold on average for $376,459. Last year it increased 4.4% to $392,731."

If you're looking for a new home, it sounds like the place to be!
